DiscussIT Topic 6: Where is our country headed?

Discuss IT Topic: Over the last week, our country has had growing concerns on immigration bans, border safety, and executive orders that remind us of issues that have been plaguing our country for years. Now that Trump has been elected President, there has been people threatening to blow up the White House, human right protests, and a plethora of other sensitive subject matters that are very compelling to individual groups of people. Why have these issues come up now as we head into a time in which it seems no one is going to be happy with the outcomes? Will this create a split in this country and place citizens against one another when it comes to their views? In your opinion, what other topics are at the forefront of concern? Explain...

Response: Please make sure all grammar, spelling, indentation, and punctuation is correct.

These issues have come up now rather than before, because Trump is known as a rich celebrity rather than a political role model or even president. Another reason that all of these protest are happening is because these protestors are really protesting for the cause, they just want attention, that's it. I do not think this country will come to a split, because though Trump has many flaws I believe he loves this country to much to just let it come to a fall such as splitting apart. I also do not if it will place citizens against one and other when it comes to their views, just because history repeats, and I would not be surprised if something like that were to happen again. Another topic that is a t the forefront of concern is immigrants, though Trump is trying to do something he could do more. Instead of providing screenings he should raise or give more money to provide for the military and give them better lives for when they resign, the people who serve our country and fight for us shouldn't be sitting on the street corner asking for money, they should be in college or living in a house with their family.
